

Nova Scotia Association of Medical Radiation Technologists

Public Member Committee and Board Representation

The Nova Scotia Association of Medical Radiation Technologists (NSAMRT) represents over 500 members in Nova Scotia in various fields of medical radiation technology. Technologists and therapists are involved in total patient management, from diagnosis to treatment, and directly influence patient outcomes. Many members of the association are also involved in important research and in public education of many current health care issues.

NSAMRT is currently seeking public members to serve on our Board and several committees. People from all regions and walks of life are needed and encouraged to apply.

By serving on one of our committees or board you can make an impact on health regulation while growing professionally and personally. It is rewarding, important work that helps make our province a better place to live and work.

I encourage anyone who is interested to learn more and consider applying to serve in one of these voluntary positions. A wide range of opportunities are available and we welcome applicants from across the province.

For any question or expression of interest in serving please contact the executive director at julieavery@nsamrt.ca or 902-434-6525.

I have also provided a link on one person's perspective on why willingness and interest can be more important than experience in volunteering to serve on a public board.

<https://www.facebook.com/notes/nova-scotia-government/willingness-to-participate-can-be-more-important-than-experience-for-agencies-bo/10154560018935242>

Sincerely,

Julie Avery
Executive Director NSAMRT